

Instructions:

Read the passage about George Crum carefully and answer the questions below.

George Crum: The Man Who Invented Potato Chips!

Who Was George Crum?

George Crum was born way back in 1824 in New York. He was a really good chef, which means he knew how to cook all sorts of yummy foods. But what he's most famous for is inventing something that everyone loves to munch on – potato chips!

The Potato Chip Adventure

So, here's the scoop: George Crum was working as a chef in a fancy restaurant called Moon's Lake House. One day, a super picky customer complained that the fried potatoes George made were too thick and not crispy enough. Instead of getting mad, George got creative!

George decided to slice the potatoes super thin, fry them until they were extra crispy, and then sprinkle some salt on top. When the customer tried them, guess what? They loved it! That's how potato chips were born – all thanks to George Crum's clever idea!

The Potato Chip Craze

Word about George's tasty invention spread like wildfire! People couldn't get enough of his crunchy, salty potato chips. Soon, they became a hit all over the place, and everyone wanted to try them.

George Crum was so proud of his invention that he started serving potato chips at his own restaurant. They were a big hit there too! People from all over came to taste George's famous potato chips, and they just couldn't get enough.

George Crum's Legacy

Even though George Crum passed away a long time ago, his legacy lives on every time we enjoy a bag of potato chips. He showed us that sometimes, the best ideas come from trying something new and thinking outside the box.

So, the next time you crunch into a delicious potato chip, remember to thank George Crum for his tasty invention!

Questions:

Where was George Crum born?

- A) England
- B) New York
- C) California

What is George Crum most famous for inventing?

Where did George Crum work as a chef?

How did George Crum come up with the idea for potato chips?

What happened when people tried George Crum's potato chips?

What did George Crum do after inventing potato chips?

How does the passage describe George Crum's legacy?

Why is George Crum remembered today?

Bonus:

Imagine you are living in the 1800s and you're a friend of George Crum. Write a letter to him telling him how much you love his potato chips and why you think they're the best snack ever!